Every Hero Has a Story! / Unmask! – MCPL's 2015 Summer Reading Programs for Children and Teens

MCPL's 2015 Children's and Teen Reading Programs are coming! Our new summer reading sign up software, Beanstack, will keep track of everything you've read and will even send you additional reading recommendations.

Sign up online at <http://www.montgomerycountymd.libguides.com/summerreading> or at the library from June 1 through August 9. You'll get a voucher for a ticket to a select Frederick Keys or Bowie BaySox (at participating branches) baseball game just for signing up! Earn cool badges as you work your way toward this summer's reading goals. If you meet each reading goal, you'll earn great incentives and chances to win tickets to a Baltimore Orioles baseball game and the Maryland Science Center.

Be sure to check our online calendar of events at <http://www.montgomerycountymd.gov/library> for a listing of all the exciting events and performances for children, teens, and families that are scheduled throughout the summer. And if you've got fines, take advantage of our Great Fines Read-Off for children and teens. Earn a $1 Library

Buck toward your fines for every 30 minutes you spend reading in the library the summer. (Some restrictions apply. Visit the Information Desk for more details.)

The Children's and Teen Summer Reading Programs and related events are sponsored by the Friends of the Library, Montgomery County, MD. Inc.; the Friends of the Library, Bethesda Chapter; and Montgomery County Public Libraries.

Annual Meeting and Election of Directors

The Friends of the Library, Bethesda Chapter (FOL-B) will hold its Annual Meeting on Tuesday, June 2, 2015. At that time we will elect at least one Director. In June 2013 we elected Joan Greenbaum to a two-year term on the Board of Directors. Her position is up for reelection this June, and additional Directors may be elected as well. If you are interested in taking your commitment to the Friends of the Library, Bethesda Chapter, to a higher level, see the form inside to submit a nomination to the Board.

People generally know Jane Austen through her novels (the correct way) or through the films (you could do a little better). The context, though – when she wrote, why she wrote, what her world looked like – can be elusive for the modern enthusiast.

This June, the Bethesda Library, in partnership with the Jane Austen Society of North America - Metropolitan DC Region (JASNA-DC), will present a lecture series on Jane Austen, her novels, and her time.

7 June - 2.00 p.m. Jane at the Movies: Austen's Novels on the Screen

Alden O'Brien, Curator of Costume at the DAR Museum, Washington D.C.

Many of us now get our visual impression of Austen's world through the many movies and serialized adaptations of her novels that have appeared since the 1990s. How do they measure up when it comes to costume? It's not only a matter of historical accuracy, but of creating visual codes and clues to character which take the place of the narrator's voice in a visual medium. The costume designer's job is not only to recreate a historic period, but to choose styles, colors, and accessories that give us visual clues to each character's personality and place in society and in the story. Alden O'Brien, curator of costume at the DAR Museum in Washington DC and a specialist in Austen's era, takes a look at Austen adaptations from the 1990s on, analyzing their "design concepts" and how they do on their own terms as well as from the standpoint of accuracy. We'll see how well each does at recreating Austen's world and conveying information to the viewer, and you'll gain insights on how to "read" the clues in historic dramas of all kinds.

14 June - 2.00 p.m. The Regency Era and the Making of Modern Morality

Mike Bevel, Facilitator, Bethesda Library's Classics in Context Program

Between George III (the famously mad one) and Queen Victoria (the famously prudish one), George III's sons did their best to ruin as much of England as possible. Whether it was parades of mistresses, drunken debaucheries, or, maybe, in one case, murder: English society teetered on the brink of collapse. In this talk, Mike Bevel, facilitator of the Bethesda Library's popular Classics in Context discussion group, looks at England during the Regency period (when George III was at his maddest, and his son ruled in his stead), and then draws contrasts between it and the Victorian period. Was Victorian morality a creation of Regency excesses?

21 June - 2.00 p.m. Begrudgingly Yours: Jane Austen, the Prince Regent, and Emma

Mike Bevel, Facilitator, Bethesda Library's Classics in Context Program

This year will mark the 200 anniversary of the publication of Jane Austen's Emma. Austen begrudgingly dedicated the novel to the Prince Regent – a man whom she, to put it mildly, despised. How did this happen? That will be the focus of this talk from Mike Bevel, facilitator of the Bethesda Library's popular Classics in Context discussion group: who instigated this uneasy collaboration between Jane Austen and the Prince Regent? What was at stake? And what did it cost Austen in the long run?

28 June - 2.00 p.m. "The Prussians are in the Woods!": England's Role in Napoleon's Defeat at Waterloo

Myron Peterson, amateur historian and living history reenactor

Myron Peterson, an amateur historian and living history reenactor, has researched and recreated various facets of soldier and sailor life in the late 18th and early 19th centuries. Discover the important role England's ally Prussia played in Napoleon's final defeat at Waterloo. Learn how the campaign developed and how choices made influenced this history-changing event.

Natural Reflections by Richard Kaufman

Richard Kaufman combines the precepts and techniques of East Asian brush painting, referred to in Japan as sumi-e, and Western art. He uses "rice" papers, of which there are many types, brushes with natural fibers, Chinese and Japanese inks, and watercolors to depict scenes from the natural world. Chinese calligraphy is included in many of Kaufman's paintings for several reasons. In addition to the meaning of the characters, calligraphy itself is an abstract art. His ultimate goal is to capture the mood, energy and life force of his subjects.

In addition to their uniqueness and personality, the artist strives to show the harmony and beauty of all things in nature. He has studied East Asian brush painting at the Smithsonian Institution, the Art League at the Torpedo Factory in Alexandria, Virginia, and as a student of several master artists. Kaufman's art works have been exhibited in many group and one-person shows and are in numerous private collections.
